Continuation of 11, does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Examiner respectfully disagrees with the applicant's argument for claims 1-42, see remarks filed on 03/07/2008 and points applicants to references as follows;

With respect to applicant's argument for claims 1-42, that Huang fails to teach suggest or disclose ".a plurality of mobile network devices comprising a buffer that stores incoming digital voice information for a predetermined queuing period beginning voice reproduction from the stored digital voice.", However, Huang disclosed plurlally of mobile network devices in a mobile network, base stations (tlems 114-116 of Fig 1), communication units (tlems 101-110 of Fig 1), and means for storing incoming digital voice information for a certain period before beginning voice reproduction from the stored digital voice data in col 3, lines 12-42 (Fig 3) in a device (console) connected to the mobile network via packet gateway (filem 120 of Fig 1) and Huang further disclosed that the procoducious deby the LAN can be any protocol able to accommodate packetized voice (col 2, lines 30-40), therefore a broad interpretation of the claim limitation "mobile network device" has been diver in relection these claims.

With respect to applicant's argument that Huang fails to teach, suggest or disclose "...a telephone connected to said stationary network device, that captures, delivers, receives and reporduces voice in an analog voice stream form". However, Huang disclosed an embodiment wherein the streams of decoded voice information is received, reproduced and delivered to the speaker in col 3, lines 3-11, Fig.

With respect to applicant's argmuent that Huang fails to teach, suggest or disclose a buffer that stores digital voice information received from said wireless network for a predetermined queuing period before converting the stored digital voice information into an analog voice stream and delivering voice stream to said teleophone...*, However, Huang disclosed data routers(times 207-208 of Fig 2) assigns buffers (times 200-202 of Fig 2) that stores digital voice information received from said wireless network for a predetermined queuing period (delay time) before converting the stored digital voice information into an analog voice stream and delivering voice stream to said teleophone. (device) "in col 2, lines 52-67, col 3, lines 1-57, col 4, lines 1-57, col 4, lines 1-57.

With respect to applicant's argument that Huang fails to teach, suggest or disclose that staionary network device converts analog voice streams received from said telephone into voice packets for delivery via said hardwired and wireless networks to a selected one of said plurality of mobile network devices.", However, Huang disclosed that the communication system (Figs 1-3) comprising interconnected wireless and LAM networks, communication units, base stations, packet gateway and consoles that provides packetized voice communication between the communication units of the talkgroups (col 2, lines 3-23, Fig 1) and therefore a broad interpretation of the this limitation has been made in relecting the claims.

With respect to applicant's argument that Huang fails to teach, suggest or disclose " using a polling protocol to manage wireless routing of that and voice packets.", However, Huang disclosed that the protocol used by the LAN can be any protocol to accommodate packetized voice (col 2, lines 23-40) and the packet gateway and data routers to handle data packets (col 2, lines 11-13) and therefore a broad interpration of the LAN protocols (polling and wireless protocols) has been given in rejecting the claims.

A broad interpretation of the claim limitations as recited in the claims has been given in rejecting the claims 1-42 using Huang reference.
